**REP. TOM EMMER:

** Hi everyone, Congressman Tom Emmer here to discuss the importance of our small businesses. This nation was founded on the entrepreneurial spirit that we all know and love. Small businesses are the backbone of our society. They are the true job creators that keep our local economies humming. And they all started with a little dream, a lot of hope, and a community of people willing to support them. Companies that started in garages have become Fortune 500 companies. Businesses that began in basements have grown into global giants providing goods and services all around the world. But they all started small. Today's small business is tomorrow's big business, but they won't get there without our help. I have worked hard to implement policies to defend and assist our small businesses and I remain committed to fighting for these job creators as long as I'm in this office. But today we need you to do your part as well. So be sure to get out there and shop small today in honor of Small Business Saturday. Thank you and have a great weekend. Note: This transcript appears to be a solo statement/monologue rather than an interview with back-and-forth dialogue between a host and Rep. Emmer.
