SEAN HANNITY:

celebrating genocide and the person's not fired and I guess this goes to the theme of the night is every Republican in the house you have power here you have the power of the purse you also would have the power to impeach Secretary Mayorkas what do you think the best way forward would be for the Republican conference

REP. TOM EMMER:

well first off I think this team had a lot of success in the first ten months we now have a new speaker a great leader the right man at the right time that this whole group has unified behind we can do some big things yet Sean and on this issue it's about holding the Biden administration accountable it's about the ongoing investigations that Jamie Comer and Jim Jordan and their committees are doing it's about the weaponization of government against your political opponents Republicans are doing all that investigation at the same time you hit on the biggest thing that our speaker is interested in in taking back which is the power of the purse the house hasn't had it for years we start doing the appropriations process that he has set us down the road on and we finish it guess what we can take back that power the person we can start to hold this renegade out-of-control executive branch accountable mr. speaker
