**REP. TOM EMMER:

** District courts issued more universal injunctions and temporary restraining orders during February 2025 alone than in the first three years of the Biden administration. The American people's trust in our court system has hit a record low according to recent Gallup polling. And even Chuck Schumer is touting that he helped confirm 235 quote progressive judges who are quote ruling against Trump time after time. Somebody should advise the Senate minority leader that that is the problem. Judges are supposed to be blind as to who's in front of them and just apply the law. You don't appoint judges to advance your political agenda. This admission and the sheer number of ruling is against President Trump's policies should raise major red flags for every American who values our constitution and the separation of powers. While Schumer cheers clearly while Schumer's cheers clearly these partisan rulings that tie the hands of the President of the United States and block the agenda of 77 million Americans. House Republicans are working to root out bias in our legal system and stop nationwide injunctions that threaten the separation of powers that our founders intended. It's absolutely ridiculous that a district judge in San Francisco can issue an injunction stopping the President from reducing the size of the federal government workforce in Washington D.C. It makes no sense whatsoever. That's why we're going to pass Congressman Ice's no rogue ruling act this week to rein in activist judges to return district courts to their appropriate role and to restore constitutional balance to the three branches. The policies of 77 million Americans that 77 million Americans voted for should not be held hostage by one unelected district court judge. It's as simple as that. By passing Congressman Ice's bill and Congressman Chip Roy's SAVE Act this week, House Republicans are once again returning common sense to Washington and delivering on the mandate the American people gave us in November. And with that, the leader.
