JACKIE:

And let's bring in House Majority Whip Tom Emmer. Whip Emmer, it's great to have you this evening. Thank you so much for being here. I wanna get your reaction to what Jeff Bezos just said and this idea that just saying you're anti-socialist if you're a GOP candidate may not necessarily be enough. What do you think?

REP. TOM EMMER:

Well, first off, Jackie, great to be with you. When it comes to this topic, first, I think that's not what we're saying. They want us to call them democratic socialists. There's nothing democratic about socialism and these people are not socialists. They are Marxists, they are communists. If you have any question about that, go look at the so-called Marxist Manifesto issued by the self-named DSA, the democratic socialists as they wanna be called. That is a term that our young people understand. The problem is socialism sounds like social justice, et cetera, but let's be clear, $6 diesel, $4 gas is entirely unacceptable, but it's still not enough to vote for a communist, Jackie.

JACKIE:

Yeah, no, I hear you. And President Trump is trying to put some short-term band-aids on what Americans are experiencing with gas prices and with the diesel price, with allowing the red dye diesel on the road, et cetera, and thinking about suspending the federal taxes. But I'm looking at this in a little bit of a different way because I hear you on just not saying we're anti-socialism, but I do hear Republicans talking about things like tax cuts, which puts more money back in people's pockets, which gives them an opportunity to keep more of what they earn. And we saw that in the big, beautiful bill. We'd like to see a little bit more of it. It's policy decisions like the president saying that this war with Iran will come to an end. Gas prices will come down. We will continue our energy push in this country to make sure that we are number one and we don't have to rely on foreign imports. So it's stuff like that that I hear and resonates with me, but I'm just not sure people are putting that in their timeline.

REP. TOM EMMER:

Well, first, on the war, when you talk to voters and you ask them about whether it would be acceptable for a radical Iran to have a nuclear weapon, that issue quickly resolves itself. Yes, we understand. President has made the right decision to protect Americans from a nuclear threat of terrorists in Iran. When it comes to the affordability issue, this is an economy that the Biden-Harris administration threw into the ditch over four years with double-digit inflation like we hadn't seen in 40 years, unemployment. I mean, the list goes on and on. That takes time to replace. The economy is starting to move. But again, I said, $4 gas, $6 diesel, simply unacceptable. And we've got to start talking about, look, what they're offering. If that's all you want is a little 12 by 12 apartment that Mamdani the Commie is gonna offer you and take whatever crumbs of food he and the government say you're entitled to, okay, that's your right. But you come with Republicans, you come with President Trump and Republicans, and we'll help you realize your greatest dreams. We've got to get back to inspiring people to want more for themselves and to work for themselves. And I think that message will resonate. It is resonating. I think Americans, Jackie, are smarter than the pundits are giving them credit for. I think they understand what's at stake here. And I think that's why Republicans are gonna be rewarded at the ballot box in 26 days.

JACKIE:

I hear you on that. And I'm also watching what's happening on the ground in France and saying, if you need any more examples of why socialism doesn't work, you've got students protesting that they don't have enough money for school in that country. But there is no more money. There's no more money to go anywhere. They are out of money because they're not growing and they don't have solid productivity. And so I think people do realize if it goes that far, it's not gonna be good here in the United States. But I wanna switch gears for a moment with Emmer because one thing President Trump did, and he did it on day one, was he shut the border down, trying to make this a safer country for all Americans. But I wanna get your reaction to the thwarted terror plot in your state. The FBI arresting and charging an 18-year-old for allegedly planning an ISIS-inspired mass casualty event on the Mall of America. Here is the U.S. attorney for Minnesota speaking about it on Fox earlier today. Listen to this. He has pledged allegiance to ISIS. As you can see in the criminal complaint, he pledged it. He pledged, he stated repeatedly his intention. First, his desire, as you said, Bill, to go to Somalia and fight there. And when he didn't have the resources to do that, to just kill a bunch of white people are essentially the words that he spoke, or wrote, I should say. He was 100% committed to those plans. With Emmer, I want your reaction to what is happening on the ground in your state.

REP. TOM EMMER:

Well, hats off to the U.S. Justice Department and to the FBI for thwarting a terrorist attack in Minnesota. Jackie, it's tough. Being from Minnesota, I love my state, and we seem to always be on the national news for waste, fraud, and abuse. Millions, if not billions, in taxpayer funds stolen by Somali fraudsters under the incompetent, and in some cases, it appears, corrupt leadership of people like Tim Walz and our Attorney General, Keith Ellison. Now you're dealing with Somali gangsters. You're dealing with terrorists, Islamic terrorists, who have committed themselves to ISIS. And I know what Dan Rosen, the U.S. Attorney, said about him writing that he wanted to kill white people. What he was planning to do is kill as many Asians at a Hmong art festival at the Mall of America as he could get. This is ridiculous, and the problem is, this is another one that you're gonna hear at the ballot box. Democrats are doing nothing about it. They are not talking about it. They are not offering solutions, and they are not holding these fraudsters or these criminal gangsters, which I would argue are enemy combatants more than anything. They're not holding them accountable. They are not going out and rounding them up and putting them in jail. And I think you wanna vote to be secure in your own country. You wanna have leadership that cares about you before criminals. You vote for the Republicans in 26 days. And my good friend, Larry Kudlow, tells me to watch the Senate race because people might be fed up enough in your state to vote for Michelle Tavoya for the U.S. Senate, and that would be a big change. I think Michelle's got a real chance of winning. She's running against a complete left-wing Marxist communist by the name of Peggy Flanagan, who, by the way, was standing at Tim Wall's side for the last four years overseeing the waste, fraud, and abuse, the theft of taxpayer money by the Somali fraudsters that we talked about. She's also seen in video after the election, I think it was a year ago, dancing around in a hijab with one of her friends from the Somali community who subsequently was indicted in the Feeding Our Future scandal. These people are crooked. They're connected to crooks. They do not belong in elected office. Michelle Tavoya's got a great chance to win in 26 days. And by the way, so do all the statewide candidates in the governor's race, secretary of state's race at all.

JACKIE:

We will be watching House Majority Whip Tom Emmer. Thank you so much for being here this evening. Great to see you.

REP. TOM EMMER:

Thank you, Jackie.
