ROB:

Minnesota Congressman Tom Emmer is the House Majority Whip. He's been calling this issue out for months. Congressman, great to have you back. The three men who were convicted, I want to read you these names, Abdakeem Ali Ahmed, Ahmed Abdali Ghadi, Ahmed Sharif Omar Hashim, all Somalian. And you're going to tell me that Ilhan Omar knew nothing about this. Do you believe that?

REP. TOM EMMER:

No, I do not believe it. In fact, you're just pointing out three of them. You realize, Rob, that they charged over 90 people in this, the largest pandemic fraud case in the country, $250 million. Of those 90-some people, 86 of them are Somalis from the Somali community. 60-some have now been convicted, including these three. And guess what? They were able to defraud the government through a program created by who? Created by Ilhan Omar during the pandemic to feed children. The MEALS Act was specifically written by her. It's been determined by a federal judge to have been drafted so that it was susceptible to fraud. So how are we supposed to believe when you find out, which I haven't even said to you yet, that a lot of these people were not only her constituents, they're her friends, Rob. You've got videotape of her with some of these fraudsters, supposedly working this Feeding Our Future scandal. So no, I think she's as crooked as they come. I think the Twin Cities media, where I come from, should be ashamed of themselves.

ROB:

Yeah. In a half years, this has been going on. But they're like covering this up for whatever reason, or they're not telling the whole story. So a judge ruled that Ilhan Omar's pandemic error relief food waivers left the child nutrition program vulnerable to fraud. And here we are $250 million later. I guess my question, Oversight Chairman Comer says the DOJ is investigating her entire family as we speak. You could lose the House in November, effective in January. If that happens, that means the clock is ticking. Why is this moving so slowly?

REP. TOM EMMER:

Well, I don't think it is moving slowly. I do think the US Attorney appointed by Donald Trump is taking it to another level in Minnesota. Jamie Comer and his committee have been on this this entire Congress, Rob. And the DOJ, that's not going to stop. The DOJ is going to stick with us. And you pointed out, this isn't just about the Feeding Our Future scandal that she is up to her eyeballs in. This is about her sudden accumulation of wealth with her third husband, I think it is, that was her fundraiser, that suddenly she was reporting a net worth of up to $30 million. And then when Eric Swalwell got run out of town and the liberal media started torching one of her corrupt colleagues, suddenly she said she had an accounting error. Remember that $30 million figure was out there for six months before she suddenly revised.

ROB:

Well, here, listen, I mean, you're exactly right. The husband's name, you're right, it's her third husband, not her brother, who she allegedly reportedly may have married. We've got the vice president questioning that. I don't think people at home realize, I'm sure they remember, but Tim Walz was a candidate for a third term as governor of your state until all this came to light. All of this multibillion dollar, largely Somali fraud in your state. Now you've got the Senate race there, Michelle Tafoya, the Republican, running against the Lieutenant Governor, Peggy Flanagan, and she's out there wearing hijabs in public for whatever reason, trying to appease this community that, as far as my tally goes, is doing nothing but robbing taxpayers in that state. Take a look.

PEGGY FLANAGAN:

Salaam alaikum. My name's Peggy Flanagan. I am the Lieutenant Governor of Minnesota, and I'm really honored and humbled to be here with all of you today. I am incredibly clear that the Somali community is part of the fabric of the state of Minnesota. I think about my friendship with Nimco. We've been friends for almost 25 years.

ROB:

I don't know about that. Nimco doesn't look like a great friend of hers, right there, just my opinion. But tell me honestly, and you're the third most prominent Republican in the House, do the people of your state, do they see right through this? Do they see through this?

REP. TOM EMMER:

Minnesota's culture, Rob, the answer to your question is yes, but Minnesota's culture, the Scandinavian culture, we don't wanna be called a racist. We don't wanna be, we just don't wanna be called names. So what happens is, I did this recently. I have talked about how we celebrate everyone's culture. You're Irish, you're German, just name it. You're Somali. Celebrate your culture, but you come to this country to be an American.

ROB:

Exactly. You come to this country to assimilate and become a member of the greatest country on the face of the planet. If you're not doing that, get the hell out of here. Yeah, I agree. Look, I'm not anti-Muslim. I'm not anti-Somali. I mean, put it this way. I don't like gaslighting, and I think that's what's happening right now. We're all so concerned about being called Islamophobic or racist or anti-Somali or whatever. Forget about it. Why don't we talk about what's actually happening and report the facts. Congressman, I appreciate you being here. I will have you back soon. Tom Emmer, thank you.
