HOST (JOHN):

I actually have representative Tom Emmer joining us right now. Tom, for as long as I've known you, I'm going to guess you're probably not aware that, you might be, I don't know, that there's a substack made by an individual who lives up in my neck of the woods in Blaine that is essentially devoted to you, has an unhealthy obsession with you, and the substack exists solely to irrationally criticize you, I'm not sure if you're aware of this, Tom, and good morning.

REP. TOM EMMER:

Good morning, John. No, I'm not aware of it, and I really don't give a bleep. Everybody's entitled to have their opinion, John. Say whatever you want about me. I know who I am, and I know I try to represent the people that put me in the place where I'm at.

HOST (JOHN):

Well, that's kind of what I figured, Tom, but you know what? It does provide me the opportunity to have quite a bit of fodder just pointing out how ridiculous those on the left are. You have your own dedicated foe of Tom Emmer substack, so you really have arrived there, Tom. So good morning.

REP. TOM EMMER:

Well, apparently, but you know what? What I don't see, what I don't hear doesn't exist. So good luck.

HOST (JOHN):

So I want to share this with you. I know we're going to talk about fraud. I want to get into what happened with Doge in these closing days before it wrapped up shop and basically what they exposed in Ohio. A few things, though, just since we're here, I know you recently did receive an endorsement. We wanted to talk a bit about that in MN6. Did you want to share your thoughts on that briefly, Tom?

REP. TOM EMMER:

Yeah, no, it was great. Saturday in Elk River, we saw hundreds of patriots that are united in the goal of holding people like Tim Walz and all the Democrats accountable and continue to build on our America first agenda. And it was great, John. Jackie and I really enjoyed spending time with so many friends and we received overwhelming support for our re-election. So I guess I'll finish it with, we can't take our foot off the gas now or at any point through November. We got to have every common sense Minnesotan get out there this summer and fall to help ensure that we elect Republicans up and down the ballot and hold our majorities in Congress to support President Trump and obviously to win the governor's race and win majorities in the Minnesota House and the Minnesota Senate.

HOST (JOHN):

Well, speaking of Governor Tim Walz, I want to share this with you. You may not be aware of what's transpired this week here in Minnesota. I'll do the short version. So you had the temporary commissioner of DHS, Shereen Gandhi. She was supposed to receive the full title and a confirmation on Tuesday this week. Right at the last minute, Walz ended up demoting her. And promoted this individual John Connolly as temporary commissioner. Now the whole process starts over again. And of course, Shereen Gandhi was the individual during Walz's administration who was there serving in that position when all the fraud was taking place. Here's the kicker though, Tom. She was still, she's still in DHS under a different title. John Connolly taking over as temporary commissioner immediately is going on medical leave for two months and she has now retaken over the position while he's out as a temporary commissioner. I mean, this is such typical Tim Walz fashion, Tom, and I wanted to share it with you if you hadn't heard.

REP. TOM EMMER:

No, no, I've been watching this. It dovetails in very nicely with his garbage last week, he and Keith Ellison. When you've got the FBI, the Homeland Security and the Department of Justice executing warrants on over 20 Somali fraudster operations, autism clinics, leering centers or daycares. And what is his response? His response is, well, that's because of the work we did. Well, you did absolutely nothing, Tim. And what that tells me is, you are concerned about what they are about to find in all of these fraud laden operations that you have allowed to exist. And so now they're looking for fall guys and they can't even do that right. This gal at DHS, if she's ultimately the fall person then why, for goodness sakes, John, do they demote her and then effectively by acclamation, put her right back in there with this other guy going on leave. The whole thing is a lot of, it's a shell game by Timmy Walls and corrupt Democrats. And they put up shiny objects every day that our worthless media follows instead of digging deep into the fraud that's there. I mean, for goodness sakes, Ilhan Omar is right at the center of it. And you don't see one iota of news coming out of the Twin Cities media talking about how she has refused to allow people to investigate her finances and all the rest. Even though she reported $30 million for months as her assets. And then suddenly said it was a rounding error and adjusted it under 100. Even though she's in the middle of the Somali feeding our future fraud, you see none of this. And now you got, I have been watching, now you've got Amy Klobuchar, bless her little heart. She goes out yesterday and she's going to get tough with fraud. What in God's name has Amy Klobuchar said about fraud in the past year? Absolutely nothing. Minnesotans should not be fooled yet again. This gal is not going to change a darn thing, John.

HOST (JOHN):

Tom, it was insane. Everything that she laid out with what she wants to do with fraud. These are all things that the left dim walls could immediately be doing now or the DFL could have done it during their time of the trifecta when they had all the power. I'm 100% with you. Let me, in the time that we have, let's turn our attention over to Doge. I know that they're closing up shop, but they did publish this massive trove of data in February letting the public see what companies are billing Medicaid for. And they uncovered this scheme that seems like a carbon copy of what we've been dealing with in various services created by the DFL. But they uncovered this in Ohio, home care schemes dealing billions of hardworking taxpayer dollars. What are your thoughts on what Doge uncovered in Ohio?

REP. TOM EMMER:

It's the same model that you got going on in Minnesota only on steroids. I mean, if you look in Minnesota, I think it was 2017, 2018, somewhere in there you're spending in the single millions on Medicaid. Guess what? Under Tim Walz, within five, six years, 400 million and growing. John, these are organized scams. They're typically being done in states that have gotten waivers from the federal government to expand Medicaid beyond what it was intended for. And in fact, it's so egregious when you look at the information coming out of Columbus, Ohio. Literally, these guys were paying family members. So you've got a Somali applicant who literally is feeding meals to their parent, allegedly. They are getting reimbursed by Medicaid for doing that. It flies in the sense of any common sense, and it's insane that they've allowed to let it go on. By the way, they may have closed down Doge. Doge was the great, what, revealer of truth. But they have not stopped rooting out waste, fraud, and abuse. In fact, the Trump administration right now has figured out how to bring in the biggest talent in the world to build these AI systems to start rooting this thing out without human interference or involvement, because that's what happens. Just like the Walz administration, these corrupt people are going to try and protect themselves and cover their tracks. When you start putting in AI systems that are completely removed from any human emotion, you start to get to the bottom of it, so this is not the end of it. That was the beginning of it, John.

HOST (JOHN):

Representative Tom Emmer, let's end on a positive note before we cut you loose this morning, just about out of time. But I know that the hiring rate numbers for March were pretty phenomenal, some of the highest in nearly two years, am I correct in that?

REP. TOM EMMER:

Yes, yes, you are. I mean, this is the beginning. Look at Jake Powell is no friend of President Trump's, right? Last week, Jake Powell, after he made a surprise announcement that he's not going to leave the Board of Governors at the Fed, was asked about the economy, John. And he could not say anything more about how great it is. He went into the fact that billions of dollars right now are being invested in manufacturing and all kinds of other things here in this country. And those hiring numbers are reflecting the beginning of that. That's why I've been saying, all these naysayers who say we aren't going to hold our majorities come the fall, they talk about affordability, John. It's always been about the economy, stupid, affordability is the economy, and that is what it's going to be about again. And guess what? As perception meets reality, the fact that it is, the economy is growing and it is going to start to boom. As that perception of Americans actually intersects with the reality, we're going to do very well in the fall. And keep in mind, all of this talk about gas prices, it's the only thing they have to talk about, because there's a lot of good news in our economy that they're not going to report. And as soon as Iran is resolved, you watch those gas prices come down very quickly, John.

HOST (JOHN):

Representative Tom Emmer, thanks as always for the time this morning. It's great to hear from you, and I hope you have a fantastic rest of your week.

REP. TOM EMMER:

Yeah, you too, John. Thanks for having me. Talk soon.
